

Pete returned to his laptop.

"Hey, check this out, Ian."

"What's that?" he asked, returning with the beers.

"It says here Jewish people have 20% more sex than Catholics or Protestants."

"Hmm."

"And people who like jazz get 30% more than average."

"What about people with bad acne who live in basement apartments and make $12.00 an hour?"

"Smokers have 10% more sex," Pete continued. "And by profession, construction workers and lawyers are way up there."

"I'm not surprised about lawyers."

"And people in Miami. For some reason, people in Miami get a lot more."

"Must be the heat."

"So here's the thing. You want a lot of sex, you move to Miami, become a construction worker, change your religion, listen to jazz and take up smoking."